

RE: JOHN DOE

MEMORANDUM OF DECISION

On October 14, 2005, the Psychiatric Security Review Board (Board) held a hearing to review the status of John Doe, pursuant to Connecticut General Statutes Section 17a-585.

John Doe was committed to the jurisdiction of the Board on March 21, 1986 by the Bridgeport Superior Court for a period not to exceed 25 years after he was acquitted by reason of mental disease or defect of the charge of Murder.

At the hearing, the parties appearing were Assistant State's Attorney Joseph Corradino, representing the Fairfield Judicial District State's Attorney's Office; John Doe, the acquittee, represented by Public Defender Joseph Bruckmann. The witnesses were Kelley Machado, LCSW, of Greater Bridgeport Community Mental Health Center (GBCMHC); and Julie Wilson, LCSW of the Office of Forensic Evaluations, Department of Mental Health and Addiction Services.

Kelley Machado, LCSW, John Doe's conditional release supervisor, testified as follows: Since his last review, John Doe has continued to receive outpatient mental health treatment from GBCMHC. He continues individual sessions with Dr. Ralph Ford, focusing on interpersonal skills, labeling and expressing emotions and adaptive skills to manage stress, frustration and anger. John Doe continues to meet with Dr. Roxanna Llovet at least monthly to evaluate and monitor his mental status and prescribe appropriate medications. He attends weekly Relapse Prevention groups at GBCMHC and meets with Ms. Machado on a weekly basis for conditional release supervision. John Doe remains employed at Goodwill Industries and he continues to receive ongoing medical care. He continues to reside at the supervised apartment program of the Regional Network of Programs.

Over the last several years, Dr. Llovet has been monitoring John Doe's display of facial tics, which are believed to be a result of years of Haldol usage. As a result of this, approximately 11 months ago, John Doe's medication regime was changed to include Abilify. The change to Abilify was implemented very slowly. However, John Doe experienced an exacerbation of symptoms in May and June of 2005. These symptoms included vague auditory and visual hallucinations and an increase in paranoia. During this time, John Doe was extremely forthcoming with his treatment providers regarding the existence of symptoms that he had not experienced in 20 years, and the emotional concern and vulnerability that he experienced as a result of the return of these symptoms. He welcomed the increase of intervention by all of his service providers and voluntarily entered inpatient treatment at Connecticut Valley Hospital (CVH) when community living became too overwhelming for him. These incidents were extremely stressful for John Doe and he showed an ability to manage his mental illness in an appropriate and safe manner. Since his release from CVH in August 2005, he has remained stable in the community. He has returned to working and functioning at previous levels.

Prior to an arranged medical leave during his psychiatric difficulties, John Doe had been doing very well at his place of employment. There were a couple of conflicts that he faced there, but he was able to handle them appropriately with minimal intervention by his treatment providers. Over the last few years, he has had two job coaches and is awaiting the arrival of a third, to which he has adjusted well.

He has remained living in the supervised apartment program of the Regional Network of Programs. The residence was sold to another landlord, who has subsequently raised the rent by $200 over the last two years, causing his monthly rent to go from $550 to $750. John Doe has spent a great deal of time with his treatment providers discussing concerns over his ability to maintain his apartment with his current finances. He has investigated new apartments in the Bridgeport area that may be less expensive. If there were to be a request to change residence he would take all of his services with him. He would remain a client of Regional Network of Programs and they would continue to provide outreach and case management services to him. GBCMHC would continue to provide all of his treatment and would arrange for a nursing service to deliver his medications twice daily.

Ms. Machado concluded her testimony as follows: John Doe has displayed progress in his independent living skills. He has taken responsibility for being proactive regarding his mental health and has continually and positively handled conflict and stress in his life. There have been no issues or concerns regarding his compliance with his Memorandum of Decision (MOD). During the last two years, John Doe has remained engaged and proactive with his outpatient psychiatric treatment. He has complied with all aspects of his MOD and conditions of release. He has exemplified progress in many aspects of his life, including problem solving, conflict resolution and seeking support when his stability and mental health were challenged.

Julie Wilson, LCSW, six-month reporter, testified as follows: John Doe's psychiatric diagnoses are: on Axis I, Schizophrenia, Undifferentiated Type, Episodic, with no Interepisode Residual Symptoms; Personality Change Due to Traumatic Brain Injury, Combined Type; on Axis II, Borderline Intellectual Functioning. He currently takes the psychiatric medication Haldol.

John Doe experienced significant changes in his psychopharmacological regimen secondary to the development of facial tics. In December 2004, he was started on the psychiatric medication Abilify, increasing by five milligrams every two weeks and remained on Haldol. He reached a therapeutic level of Abilify in March 2005. In April 2005, his Haldol was slowly titrated down by 2 milligrams every month. Initially, John Doe appeared to be adjusting well to the addition of Abilify and the decrease of Haldol. By June 2005, John Doe started to complain of auditory and visual hallucinations, non-specific paranoia and sleep disturbances. His treatment providers noted that he was easily confused, had memory problems and was not oriented to all spheres at all times. His Haldol was increased to the original dosage, and then increased further when his symptoms did not dissipate. It was at this time that Abilify was decreased and eventually discontinued. As a result of John Doe's recent psychiatric decompensation, he requested and was granted a voluntary admission to CVH.

Ms. Wilson's mental status evaluation used for this hearing was conducted while John Doe was inpatient at CVH in July 2005. He presented as calm, attentive and maintained good eye contact. His mood was euthymic and his affect was of full range. He denied being preoccupied, depressed, hopeless, suicidal or homicidal. He denied having any difficulty controlling his temper or being irritable, angry or impulsive. He denied experiencing any perceptual disturbances, but exhibited minimal difficulty organizing his thoughts. There was no clinical evidence or report of mood dysregulation, psychosis, paranoid thinking or difficulty with frustration tolerance or impulse control. He denied having any preoccupation with using alcohol or other substances or having experienced cravings for any of these substances.

Cognitive examination during the July 2005 evaluation was consistent with his performance during previous examinations. He was alert and oriented to person, place and the exact date and was aware of recent events in the news. His attention and concentration were in the low average range. In regards to memory, he continued to exhibit some difficulty recalling dates and information. His thinking is predominantly concrete and rigid. His insight regarding his illness, the importance of medication compliance and support to maintain a stable mental status, the early warning signs of a change in his mental status and the need to report these signs, as evidenced especially during a period of decompensation, was rated as fair to good.

John Doe's risk factors include a history of psychiatric decompensation with psychotic features, traumatic brain injury, borderline intellectual functioning, alcohol and substance abuse, violence toward others and non-compliance with treatment. During this two-year reporting period, there has been no evidence of dangerous behavior, although he did experience an activation of one of his risk factors, a psychiatric decompensation. He identified the symptoms associated with this risk factor and immediately informed his treatment providers. His treatment team effectively implemented risk management plans for managing his risk.

During this reporting period, all screens for alcohol and other substances of abuse have been reported as negative and there has been no evidence of dangerous, impulsive or maladaptive behavior. His compliance with treatment and the conditions of his MOD have consistently been described as excellent.

Progress has been identified that may positively impact the mitigation of his risk factors. For example, John Doe continued to demonstrate a better ability to manage his stress. He has faced numerous stressors, including a rent increase, various issues at work, a brief separation from his girlfriend and psychiatric decompensation. He effectively managed these situations, as evidenced by his increased awareness of the difficulty adjusting to these changes and utilization of his improved communication and interpersonal skills. He has successfully transitioned into a more independent living environment, which had a positive effect on his mood, adaptive functioning and general well being. He engages in social activities and has developed positive relationships with his peers and residential staff.

Ms. Wilson concluded her testimony as follows: John Doe has shown continuous progress in all areas of his life and treatment. It is Ms. Wilson's opinion that he continues to suffer from a mental illness that requires treatment and supervision, but under the stipulations of his current plan of care, he does not present a significant danger to himself or others at this time and can remain on conditional release in the community.

The administrative record indicates the following: John Doe successfully transitioned to a more independent residential setting and there was no indication that the move activated risk factors or any maladaptive responses. He remained well engaged in treatment. He was honest and open with his treaters when he began experiencing psychotic symptoms and worked closely with his providers as they attempted to control them but ultimately resulted in his request for a voluntary hospitalization.

Based on the evidence, the Board finds the following facts: John Doe continues to have a psychiatric disability and continues to require treatment, monitoring and supervision, which can be adequately and safely provided in the community on conditional release. John Doe experienced a psychiatric decompensation secondary to a change in medication resulting in a voluntary hospitalization. John Doe was forthcoming with his community treatment providers in regards to the symptomatology he was experiencing during his decompensation and was responsive to and accepting of any and all recommendations. He has made progress in treatment and in his independent living skills. John Doe can safely remain on conditional release under the conditions contained within this order without constituting a danger to himself or others.

Based on the facts, the Board finds that John Doe remains a person who can be conditionally released; he has a psychiatric disability to the extent that his final discharge would constitute a danger to himself or others but can be adequately treated and supervised in the community.
